

Anti-Fight Crusade Saves Champion's Title

"LL ANTHUR'S" LUCK IS STILL WITH HIM

Champion Jack Johnson Out of Condition for Bruising Contest With Wells.

CLERGY STOPPING BOUT

Galveston Negro Is Able to Dodge Fight Without Injury to Reputation.

Extracts from European journals and cables to eastern newspapers show that Jack Johnson's proverbial good luck has not been spoiled by crossing the ocean. After the fast life of London, Jack Johnson wound up with a journey in the night train of Paris. Champion Jack is in a worse condition than at any other time during his hectic career. His luck, however, is so good that he does not have to back out or take a chance with a bruiser like Wells, because it is practically certain that the churches and newspapers will prevent the fight. The principal reason assigned for the postponement is that it will stir up racial hostility while the churches oppose the bout on the three-hundred ground of morality.

Even "The Thunderer," the ancient and honorable London Times, has declined to take cognizance of the fact that such a person as Champion Jack exists and that he proposes to alter the racial hostility while the churches oppose the bout on the three-hundred ground of morality. Even "The Thunderer," the ancient and honorable London Times, has declined to take cognizance of the fact that such a person as Champion Jack exists and that he proposes to alter the racial hostility while the churches oppose the bout on the three-hundred ground of morality.

Johnson ought to be satisfied to get out of the fight on easily. He is not how much he outclasses Wells. If the stories of his disposition are half true, he is in danger of being beaten. If that dire calamity should happen, promoter Hugh McLoish would immediately cancel Jack's highly profitable Australian tour, which means much more in dollars and cents than his fight with Wells. Even Sam Langford would probably tell Jack to go and win back a reputation before he could fight him. Bombardier Wells would be the champion of the world and everybody would know that it was Parisian absinthe and not Wells that won the title for him. Happily such a terrible condition of things is about to be averted. Australia has been made by the archbishop of Canterbury and by many other high churchmen to the government to prevent the fight.

By the time Jack gets to Australia he may be himself again.

Wells while not much of a pugilist is a big strong fellow, who is always in the pink of condition. If Johnson met him at present the Reno episode might cease to be the greatest blunder of modern pugilism.

No doubt Johnson is smart enough to know this, and is thanking his lucky star that a way has been provided for him to avoid fighting without loss of prestige.

TUOHY SAYS "GREEK DEMON" IS FINICAL

Demetrial, the "Greek Demon," feels that he should have the right to add a name or two to the list of men proposed by Harry Haggren for referee of the match between Demetrial and Jack Johnson at the Salt Lake theater next Tuesday night, and so declared himself after going over the list.

That list, including names carefully but he reserved the right to add some of his own account. Just whom he proposes to name he does not say, but he gave an inkling. The names proposed by Haggren are E. E. Scherke, William Hughes, Willard Bean, W. D. Risher and Mike Yokel.

George Tuohy, manager of the Turk, said that any one of the men named was suitable to him, when told of Demetrial's stand and rather hot and expressed himself in rather caustic manner over the Greek's quibbling.

Demetrial cannot name any man, according to the articles of agreement that he has signed. Hence if he fails to agree on some one of those named the final selection will come down to the sporting writers. This, too, will suit him. I cannot understand why Demetrial after signing the articles of agreement, should want to go beyond them and to ask, by inference, for the appointment of a referee of his own selection. He has had all the concessions that will be made him and he will find that he will select a man from the list submitted or else have to permit the selection to be made by the newspaper men.

HIGH SCHOOL IS ARRANGING GAMES

Manager Barwood of the high school football squad is in communication with Denver, Pueblo, Colorado Springs and Portland concerning a football tour. Thanksgiving. He is confident he will be able to induce one of the eleven to come here. The largest squad of the year, consisting of forty-four men, turned out to practice yesterday afternoon. The squad was divided into four teams, who were worked at running off plays.

If Matt Wells Wins Tonight He Will Tackle the Formidable Packey.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—On the eve of the ten-round battle here between Abe Attell, world's featherweight champion, and Matt Wells, English premier lightweight, both fighters were reported to be in excellent condition.

McFarland is the best a match with Attell. A doubt the Englishman is thought the only opponent will be Wolgast.

Marquis of Queensberry Points Out Effect of Too Much Reform in America.

BY THE MARQUIS OF QUEENSBERRY.

(Copyright, 1911, by the Marquis of Queensberry.)

Scene, the Zoological gardens, Chicago, Sept. 19, 1911.—Father and son, named Buster, aged 12, visiting show for the first time.

Buster—Say, Pop, take me first to see the horses. I have never seen one yet.

Pop—Yes, my son, but don't always be so anxious to see horses. They are dreadfully wicked animals and in four years were the ruin of society. Now they are used only at funerals as a sort of expiation of their former sins. They are made to draw the departed at a walking pace to the grave.

R is a f e r—Pop, things, how and what they look, not a bit like those fine gee-goes in grandpa's old picture. They look as if they wanted shoving and had swollen feet.

Pop—Yes, that is so, but the present day horse is not allowed to trot, and it is five years in the Bridewell if you let the wicked brutes break into a gallop.

Buster—What is racing?

Pop—Hush, Buster, racing, once the sport of kings is now taboo. It made men laugh and he says, but some of them lost money. They say the horses are the money, and money and money horses would be accused of leading these brutes on to fraud and would be punished.

Buster—Let's go away. I don't want to see them any more. They're all knock-kneed and not a bit nice.

Pop—Yes, they are, but let us go and see the birds. They are trying to teach it to say "sweet, sweet," but they are trying to reform it, and that's why it has such a sad face.

Buster—O, Pop, just look at that poor chicken.

Pop—That's no chicken, that's an American sporting eagle.

Buster—Why do they put it in such a small cage?

Pop—Well, it's a wild, bad beast, and fond of spot and killing hares, so they have put it in a cage and made it a caged bird instead of a wild one.

Buster—The barbarians! Fancy striking any one with the fist. We now use the mule kick, and toe hold, the bear back hug, the shank bite, and the rushing move when we have a dispute with any one.

Pop—Enter the museum and examine a pair of twelve-ounce amateur boxing gloves. Buster, the wicked fighting gloves. Fancy getting that on your managed face. Men used to fight with their fists, but now they use gloves.

Buster—Say, Pop, I'm for home; and, say, can't you take me away from my school and send me to that school in France?
